Saf bir dünyadan gelen yaratıcılık, özgür ve sınırsız olsaydı nasıl olurdu? Tıpkı çocukların dünyası gibi...

Bu sergide sizlere gerek kağıt üzerinde çizimlerle, gerek heykellerle, hatta enstalasyonlarla ifade ettiğimiz görsel yaratıcılığımızı sergiliyoruz.

Sizleri dünyanın renkleri ve formlarını çocukların gözlerinden görmeye davet ediyoruz.

What if creativity was free and limitless, from a pure world. A child's world is like this.

Today we invite you to experience the visual creativity of our minds, expressed on paper or through sculpture or even installations.

We invite you to see the world's colours and forms through our eyes.

We invite you to be amazed.

What am I? Boundless imagination

Look at our collective sculpture of a creature made of wire and painted fabric.

This creature was the outcome of our collective imaginations.

Can you guess what I am?

The doll that I made

The exciting process of creating our own doll.

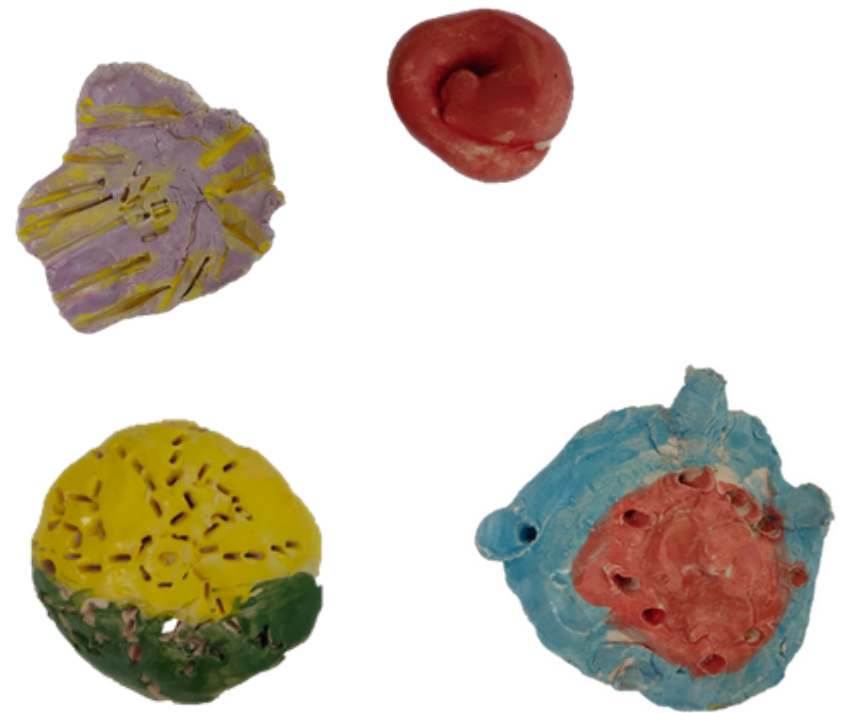

These dolls are a reflection of our imaginations and based on who or what we want to hug.

Ceramic Tree Blossoms

Ceramic Tree Blossoms

The tree outside in our garden did not have any blossoms. These are ceramic flowers for that tree, as inspired by real blossoms.

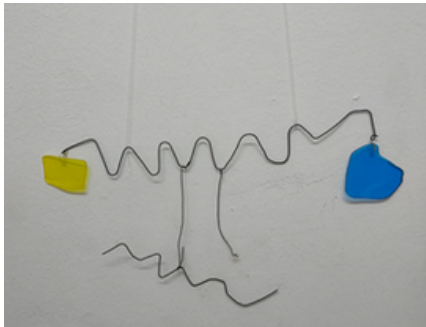

Alexander Calder and I

Alexander Calder and I

Alexander Calder is a great artist who created dynamic mobile sculptures.

This is our original rendition as inspired by his work.

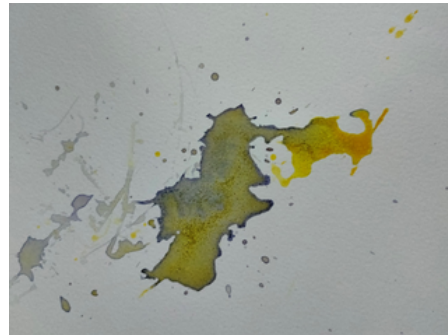

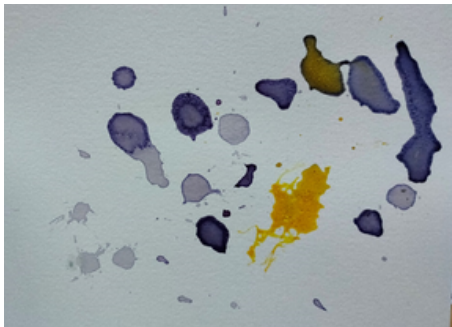

Pinecone Sculpture

We created imaginary forms by repurposing what we found in nature into a sculpture.

Natural Painting

Using natural colours derived from ingredients found in our school's kitchen, we painted our own compositions

Recycled Flowers

We don't want plastic. It makes our planet ugly. We repurposed recycled materials to create beautiful flowers for our beautiful planet.

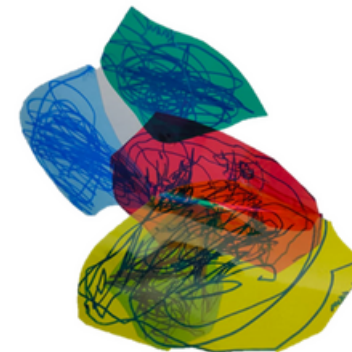

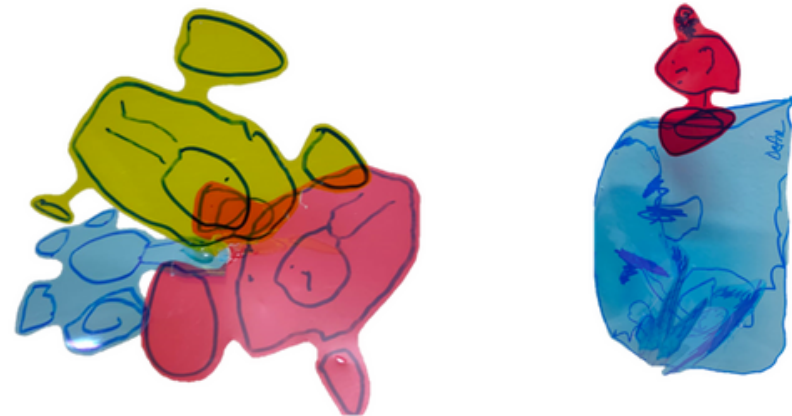

Painting Flowers

After observing real flowers and their parts and colours, we painted our own renditions. These are our flowers.

My Geometrical Sculpture

Geometrical shapes are new to us. We wondered: "what if we made shapes out of shapes?". We created playful sculptures using the geometrical shapes we drew.

From our Imagination into Clay

Using our hands we gave shape to clay and used wire and paint to create unique sculptures.

Lost Colours

A collaboration between students of Çekirdek and artist Elham Angell

Adults lose their ability of seeking and finding happiness everywhere as they get older. But we still have the vision to find happiness whenever and wherever. This paper was torn. Damaged by the rain and wind, it was a sad paper. We made the paper happy by painting happiness on them. It is possible to find happiness in every corner and situation. This is our resulting a

Imagining myself

Art and Cognitive Development
Self-Portraits by Students in 2 Parts

The students were first asked to imagine themselves and focus on their own image. They drew their image of themselves on acetate paper. In the second part, they were given mirrors to observe their faces before drawing their own faces.

We are the story teller

We are the story teller.
We are telling a story
through photo collage

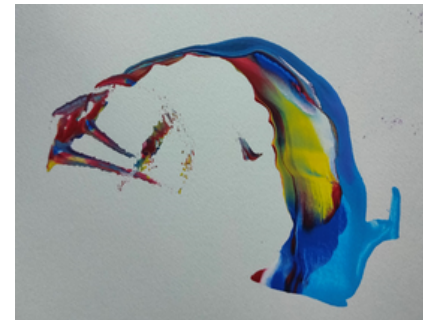

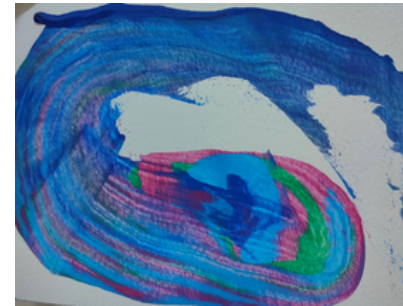

The Face That I Love

We mixed colours to create unique skin colours for these faces. What a beautiful and diverse world. We are different, yet we are the same.

The Magic of Colours

Colours can perform magic. We played with a layer of our favourite colours on paper for this painting.

A New Masterpiece

Using great works of art in history as inspiration, we recreated their paintings. We are the artist now. These are depictions of our imaginations of the story behind the paintings.
